UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE LITERARY WORK OF MIAMI MEN

In the approaching Centennial Ceremonies of Miami University, it is intended that considerable emphasis shall be placed upon the historical features, and due importance given to the influence of Miami and of Miami men in the development of national resources and culture. The attention of the Committee on Arrangements has been called to the incomplete collection of books now in the University Library representing the literary activity of alumni, former students, and professors. The public recognizes, in a vague way, that Miami men have done their share, and probably more than their share, in contributing to American publication. This seems an appropriate occasion to inaugurate a movement that shall ultimately result in bringing together, in alcoves of the new Alumni Library set apart for the purpose, all these volumes for which the old college may justly claim credit.

Such an undertaking requires time: the volumes will not be in place for your inspection when you return in June. First must come the compiling of a fairly complete and accurate bibliography; then the checking process to determine what books from the list are already University property. The larger and longer task will still remain,—to acquire by constant solicitation and occasional purchase the books needed to complete the stock. As these come in, they will be catalogued and numbered by the regular system of the library, but a special book-plate and a mark on the catalogue-card will indicate their peculiar significance.

This Bulletin represents the first step in the project, the publication of a tentative bibliography, to be reprinted with revisions in the Centennial Volume. The list that follows does not pretend to be complete or even correct so far as it goes. It is simply the best that can be done with the information at our command. The Committee will be pleased to have you criticise it to your heart's content, provided you write out your criticism with extreme care, and mail it promptly to the Alumni Secretary. Living Miami men will kindly see to it that any writings of theirs are listed, and listed properly. Relatives and friends of deceased alumni and ex-students will aid greatly in this work by correcting and enlarging the items that follow. It will be noted that editorial work on periodicals has been included in this list.

No bibliography has been attempted here for Miami professors, because of inadequate information, particularly with regard to later men. So far as possible these will receive copies of the list, and will greatly oblige by submitting the desired data promptly.

THE CENTENNIAL

You should have all your plans complete by this time, to attend the Miami Centennial, June 12-17. Every friend of the University seems to be interested, and practically every one who is heard from promises to be here. The main program has just about taken final shape, and fraternities and literary halls are now at work arranging their private exercises. A better array of forensic talent was never offered to an audience in the middle west; and best of all, it is nearly all our own. Amateur dramatics and first-class music will enliven the days and nights. Ample accommodations can be promised to our guests, and an experienced caterer has been secured for the week. Complete programs and announcements, together with various reservation blanks, will be mailed to all alumni, former students, and friends at an early date in May. It will behoove you to return an acceptance promptly, for the men of Miami are all coming back in June.
